Graphic Sketch of a Railway-car at Day-This life-like sketch is by the clever word-painter of the Chicago Evening Journal:

"Long before we hear the roar of wheels, we see the glimmer of a glowing light. Brighter and broader it opens, like the Cyclopean unwinking eye it is, the head light of the trails. Then the steady jar, then the mingled clank as of a thousand shaken chains and the cars are here. 'All aboard? and 'all right!' follow each other in quick succession, and we are breathing the close and heavy air of a crowded dormitory. The car-lamps have gone out, disgnated; the little wakefulness of the sleepers has subsided, and the dim snoring outline of cloaks and shaws, and frightened-looking heads, flecked here and there like a troubled sea, with white, compose the land-scape; while over all, like pendulums, swing piethoric carpet-bags, slowly to and fro, and little satchels, brisk as mantle-clocks, and bonnets, made of nothing, dance up and down, like blossoms in a rain; all timed to the motion of the train.

"But the dim gray turns to an old-eyed white, and the breathing bundless begin to stir, out of an egg-shaped package is hatched a woman, with hisr disheveled, like Venus from the sea. A three or two, and a rougher form emerges from a cloak and shawl and shakes itself awaite. A shapeless heap turns painter of the Chicago Evening Journal.

a woman, with hair disheveled, like Venus from the sea. A three or two, and a rougher form emerges from a cloak and shawl and shakes itself aware. A shapeless heap turns out a man, bearded like a pard. A pair of boots thrust out like bowsprits, goes out of sight, as the owner comes in view. One is soothing an irritated hat with gentle touches of his elbow; another pulling at his wilted col'ar. Disordered tresses are smoothed with hasty touches of the hand, and erumpled sleeves persauded into shape. One lady has learned her lesson from Grimalkin, and makes her toilet precisely like a cat.

"The cold, clear light of early morning is always trying to human beauty; there are no tints to be borrowed, no softening shades to be worn; a plain, cold stare, that looks one out of countenance. But in a railroad train the ordeal is appalling. If a face ever looks faded it is then; if the hair has any grey in it, is sure "to show;" wrinkles are read, like a sign-board, afar off. If there be discontent in the heart, it comes into the mouth, and every body looks like people after a masquerade, or Richard after he became "himself again."

Japanese "Tommy" Becoming Young-Americanized. The Philadelphia correspondent of a New York paper observes:

"During the procession, young 'Tommy' made himself very conspicuous, and indeed manifested a degree of activity and anti-conservatism that was positively startling. From Baltimore he rode to Philadelphia on the locomotive, the only one of the Japanese that had the courage to do it. He fraternized with the engineer and fireman, and observed the machinery with interest. During the York paper observes: with the engineer and fireman, and observed the machinery with interest. During the trip he tried to explain in his broken English some of his exploits in Baltimore, of which he appeared very proud. While witnessing the exhibition of the fire department there, one of the men offered him the hose; Tommy immediately took de butt and began playing upon the crowd, manifesting the greatest delight at their annovance. On the locomotive he got hold of the bell-rope and kept ringing the bell almost all the way from Wilmington to this city, nor did his lively spirits desort him even under the influence of the long procession; on the contrary, he appeared nighly delighted, answered with surfless and bows to the salutes of the crowd, and even ventured to kiss a young girl who tried to shake hands with him.

Russia Desirous of Pence.

If we are to credit a St. Petersburg correspondent of the Morning Post, Russia is occupied almost exclusively with dreams of peace, progress and reform. This writer says that, after thirty years of war against progress civilization and common sense, Russia is beginning to open her eyes, and, regretting the past, wishes a brighter future:

"The simple fact is that Russia, on the one hand, wants both men and money; on the other, most ardently seeks peace and progress. There is not a man throughout the whole empire, commencing with the Emperor, who does not ardently pray for it, and he, or I greatly err, fears far more internal commotion than seeks external aggression. He ardently desires reform; he sees and feels that, however territorially vast his empire, it is all but the last—I question if it be not the very last—in the list of civilized nations. The man Turk de facts is in advance of the man Russe in all that makes life worthy.

The writer adds that, although the Emperor Alexander earneatly desires to emanchate the serfs, the queetion drag on slowly, surrounded by difficulty, even danger, to the State.

Determining the Age of Egypt.

An English Engineer, Leonard Horner, has been making some experiments for determining the age of Egypt by counting the layers of alluvial deposit along the banks of the Nile, made by the annual overflowing. Mr. Horner's researches are made by sinking shafts at various points. One of these was sink close to the great monolithic statue of Rameses II, at Memphis, and it was found that there were nine feet four inches of Nile sediment between eight inches below the surface and the lowest part of the platform on which the statue stands.

Below the platform the shaft was driven thirty feet through the deposit. At the depth of thirty-nine feet pottery was found in a good state of preservation. Taking the date of the crection of the statue at 1351 B. C., the finding of the pottery, together with the examination of the different layers of deposit, Mr. Horner thinks he has discovered traces of the existence of man 11,500 years before the Christian era, or 7,500 years before the date at present fixed for the creation of the world. EXTENSIVE SALE OF BLOODED HORSES.—One of the most extensive sales of horses, by auction, ever held in Massachusetts, took place the other day at Clappville, a village near the town of Leicester, on the farm of Reuben S. Denny, a well-known breeder. The stock included some of the best breeds known. Among the animals sold were the following: "Miles Standish," four years old, for $2,400; "John Alden," three years old, $1,050; "Garibald," twenty-three months old, $1,000; and a filly, three weeks old, for $2,300; and others ranging from $140 to $600. The net proceeds of the sale amounted to $15,267. EXTENSIVE SALE OF BLOODED HORSE

A London Journal's Origins of an Amesical Novel.—The London Leader praises Miss Prescott's novel of Sir Rohm's Ghost with much cordiality. "Whatever," it says, "may have been the success of this work in America, we do not think its reception by an English public will be less gratifying to the author. For ourselves, we feel justified in prenouncing it, notwithstanding certain blemishes and incongruities, as a decided work of genius, and as such we have no doubt that it will speedily achieve for Itself a great popularity and extensive circulation."

The Greman Element of the Country.— The total German population in the United States is estimated at 7,481,724. Fifteen per cent of the white population of the twelve slave States, twenty-five per cent, of the nine Northern States, and forty-three per cent. of the nine Western States, being German.

What Mexico needs can not be supplied by parties or by leaders. Justes may be an intelligent and educated man; so was Comonfort, yet the latter was hunted out of the miscalled Republic. It is all folly to endeavor to convert paous and leperce into lawabiding citizens. It is impossible to bestow enlarged capacities for the rational comprehension and faithful administration of Democratic institutions upon a nation ridden by priestorast, and a prey to growpiling superoriesteraft, and a prey to groveling super-titions. The idea of a people claiming to inderstand and obey a Republican constitu-tion when they strike from it the very coundation of political freedom—liberty of

The Mexicans make the same mistake that the French and Italians have often committed. They do not consider their adaptation to a particular form of government, but take for granted that they are quite competent to make their own laws—forgetting that pulses wisdom experience adventions of tent to make their own laws—forgetting that unless wisdom, experience, education and sobriety preside over the manufacture, the laws will be full of imperfections, and that unless the nation are habituated to the perpectual restraints of self-government, they will disobey their own statutes, and will be constantly endeavoring to change them. No people can be safely entrusted with unlimited power until they know how to use it, and assuredly Maxico has thus far given no evidence of ability in that respect.

EFFECTIVE TREATMENT OF PLEURO-PNEUMONIA IN A HORSE.—A homeopathic physician communicates to the New York Tribune the following interesting and valuable account of his treatment of a case of disease in one of his horses—the symptoms of which resemble the terrible malady which is devastating the herds in Eastern Massachusetts as to naturally suggest the inquiry, if the pleuro-pneumonia may not extend to the horses of the country as well as to the horned cattle. The horse was first observed to lose his spirits, and then strength. The next day, as he stood in his stall, he hung his head and refused to eat, but manifested a great thirst. His mouth was hot, and his tongue pale and dry. His respiration superficial, hot, and panting. The eyes were dull and watery, nostrils extended and ref. He had a dry but not frequent cough. The pulse was not much disturbed. His weakness increased until he could scarcely move or stand.

The treatment was: Aconite of the 12th The treatment was: Aconite of the 12th, four doses, three hours apart—permitted to act twelve hours; the next day, bryonia of the 30th, dissolved in a bucket one-quarter full of water, taken at a draught, repeated at evening, and again the next evening. Under the aconite the heat of the horse's mouth disappeared, and the thirst lessened. After the bryonia the capacity to cough increased, showing that the strong hepatization of the lungs had diminished; then his general strength increased, and his appetite grew. One dose of phosphorus 30th, given twenty-four hours after, completed the cure of a case, every one of whose symptoms was the "pleuro pneumonia," of Massachusetts.

A "Genteel" Shop-Lifter in the East.—
The other day a lady dressed in black arrived in Rochester, New York, by cars, and went to a hotel, where she registered her name as Mrs. Davidson, of Buffalo. She walked out to look at the stock of the dry goods merchants, and among other places called at the store of Wilder, Chase & Co. Her conduct there excited suspicion, and it was believed that she took some goods from the store without a bill and without payment.

A search warrant was obtained and a policeman repaired to the room occupied by this "lady in black," and informed her that he was deputed to look after stolen property. She put on the air of a lady and demanded his authority. He produced his papers, and proceeded with the search. Two pieces of brocatelle, six or eight handkerchiefs, and some ribbon were found, but nothing answering the description of the property searched for, and no arrest was made.

The lady said she belonged in Tiffin, Ohio, and was there to purchase goods. She had no baggage with her, but was finsh of money, having about one thousand dollars in bank notes.

THE STATUE OF ARCHOURE CHARLES CONSECRATED.—The Vienns sculptor, Fernkorn, has recently been receiving honor in his own country. His equestrian statue of the late Archduke Charles was unvalled on the 22d of May, in the presence of the Court, the garrison forces, and a brilliant concourse of spectators, in all about 60,000. After the unvailing was accomplished a mass was said, and the statue was consecrated. Then the artist was conducted by Count Thun to the Imperial tent, where he received the congratulations and thanks of the Emperor, who shook hands with him. The stone-mason who made the pedestal was also presented to the Emperor, from whose hands he received a gold medal as a reward of his skill. The statue represents the Archduke Charles on heaven. a gold medal as a reward of his skill. The statue represents the Archduke Charles on horseback with a standard in his hand. Professional men say that one of the fore legs of the horse is too long and its tail too heavy, but the ensemble is extremely good. The head of the horse is perfect, and the folds of the coat worn by the Archduke, are remarkable for their lightness and "actives."

ble for their lightness and "softness Good EFFECT OF THE FRANCE AND ENGLAND COMMERCIAL TREATY.—The treaty with France which allows French watches to be introduced in competition with the English, has had an immediate good effect. The Leeds Mercury informs its readers that the Clerkenwell watch-makers, alarmed at this, have set their wits at work to produce serviceable watches at a lower price. "One method." their wits at work to produce serviceable watches at a lower price. "One method," says that journal, "is the adoption of what is called the 'going barrel' movement, by which the works of a watch are much simplified, and are less likely to get out of order, as well as to cost less. This very improvement has been pressed upon the London makers at various times for nearly twenty years past by the country trade, who are principally supplied from London; but the obstinacy and prejudice of the former have stood in the way. Free competition, it seems, is bringing way. Free competition, it seems, is bringing them to their senses."

A Newspaper Sund for Liest of Account of a Prima Donna,—When Gazzaniga, the prima donna, was about to leave Boston and America for England, she was detained, as we have said, at the suit of a Daguerrectypist in the city named. The Boston Course alleged that these people solicited her to sit for her picture, then sent her an unjust bill. Now they have brought an action for libel against the Courser, laying their damages at $3,000.

A VENERABLE VIVANDIERE.—The vivan-diere of the Fourth French Regiment of the line, Therese Jourdon, was born in Besancon, in 1765. She joined the regiment in 1779, and has ever since remained with it. She has accompanied it on all its campaigns to Egypt, Germany, Poland, Spain, Ruesia and Africa. She is now ulnety-five years old, and enjoys, in perfect heaith and vigor, a pension allowed her by the officers of the regiment.

The Period of Byron's Marriage.—A correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce says that the statement that Lady and Lord Byron lived together only thirteen days is an error; the separation did not take place until after the union of a year.

Sensible Advice veom A Vixes.—To all young men, whether clerks or otherwise, we would say, observes Fanny Fern, if you marry a humming bird don't expect that marriage will instantly convert it into an owl; and if you have caught it, and caged it, without thought of consequences, don't, like a coward, shrink from your self-assumed responsibility, and turn it loose in a dark wood, to be devoured by the first vulture.

The Beauty and Comfort of Faith.

Henry Ward Beecher said in a recent sermon:

One text that hooks a man to God, and that makes him feel that in him he has a Father who wheels the bright army of the stars, who carries the globe in its revolutions, who is the creator and susfainer of all mankind—one such text, oh, how it takes away care, and anxiety, and sorrow! How much food there is in your Father's house that you never tasted! In that house there is bread enough and to spare, and yet you go fretting and worrying through life, borrowing trouble about the future, with which you have concern. Now when you go to your home to-night, will you try to make it brighter? It is not necessary that you should have more candles burning; or that you should have more candles burning; or that you should rub up your furniture, but when you go to your home, will you carry the thought of God with you, caring for you, loving you, providing for you? Out of every day God is making a path by his hand for the morning; and for you, and out of every day God is making a bed of darkness for the night, and for you. From day to day the speech of God is uttered, and from night to night Divine knowledge is shown. And since you are guided by such a One, since all your paths are laid by him; since he has comforted you with the assumances of his Word; since, looking at the birds and the flowers, he has said to you, "I will remember you, and I will do more for you than I do for these, because, you are worth more;" since you are kept from year to year because God made you, and cares for you—since these things are so, need you have any fears that you will not be divinely cared for in the future? Oh what beautiful passages those are that sit on two legs, fly with two wings, and send out of one little throat a whole breastful of texts, each one of which is a song of God to the believing soul! I heartily thank God for them.

Proutias Effect of an Apricas Wind-

Prouliar Effect of an African WindL. McLeod, the author of a work on Travels in Eastern Africa, recently published in London, furnishes the following account of a Harmattan wind: During the prevalence of these winds, I have frequently seen the furniture split, and articles which were venering in some cases being curied up like dried sheets of paper. Books left closed on the table at night would be found on the following morning completely opened, and each leaf standing up as if it had been highly stiffaned with gum. At such time glass tumblers would break, apparently of their own accord; and I have known one slight tap given a tumbler made of blown glass, not only break to it, but, as if by sympathy, others remotely placed in different parts of the room.

Ansonote of Lord Brougham,—An Edinburgh paper says that Lord Brougham, after all the fatigues of the installation, and after dining with the Senatus and University Court, went in the evening to Lady Belhaven's drawing-rooms at Holyrood. Nothing would satisfy his lordship, but he must see Rizzio's blood, and away he went with two guides and a couple of candles, and, kneeling down with a light on each side, pored over the dark stains, "taking evidence" upon this dubious point. One can fancy the scene in that little, faded, decrepit old room. When there, some one, alluding to what his lordship had so well said in the forenoon of Elizabeth's conduct in the matter of Mary, saked him if he was for Mary. "No," said he, with that wonderful voice and eye, "I'm against Elizabeth, but I'm not for Mary."

RECOIL OF THE ABBSTRONG GUN,-It i stated that the tremendous recoil from the Armstrong gun experienced during the re-cent trials on board the Redwing gunboat, cent trials on board the Redwing gunboat, renders it imperatively necessary that some other form of carriage should be substituted for the one at present in use, should the smaller gunboats be armed with these weapons. The greased wad that was introduced for the purpose of cleansing the gun when fired, is said to have remedied the matter to a certain extent, but the fouling of the gun is still very great.

MATRIMONIAL GAUGE FOR TITLES.—A New York journal states that the Flora McFlim sork journal states that the Flora McFlim-seys are now taken regularly over to the matrimonial market in Europe, in which dukes, counts, and marquises are as thick as blackberries, who, being often unable to meet the claims of their bootmakers and washer-women, are nothing loth to be annexed to the bright eyes and solid charms of Fifth Avenue belies. The product of such a com-bination of profligacy and vanity can not possibly be worse than the original stock.

Another Solomon in Vermont.—The famous case of the two mothers and one baby, wherein Solomon displayed his sagacity, has been matched in Rutland, Vt., where a woman charged another with stealing her child from the cradle. She brought suit for the baby, and the magistrate, after hearing a good deal of conflicting testimony, decided in favor of the woman who cried the most. That was, substantially, the judgment of Solomon in the other case, and is probably correct.

An important Question Settler,—It is satisfactory to the Second Advent people to know that J. V. Himes, the leader of the American flock, has made an agreement with Dr. Cumming, whereby the end of all things, including the weeld, is to take place in 1887. So long as these two lights were at variance concerning the time of the catastrophe, of course, nothing could be done.

A CANADIAN JOURNAL ON OUR POLITICE.
The Montreal Herald says "The son of Quiney Adams is now in the American Senate," and that "Mr. Sumner, who was nearly beaten to death by Mr. Butler in the Senate of the United States," has lately made a speech, &c. The Herald might profitably either study or avoid American politics.

THE LATEST PARISIAN SWINDLE-THE Vind, sufficiently to obtain a capital dinn wind, sufficiently to obtain a capital dinner free of expense, says a Paris letter writer, has just been invented, and has thus far been found to work admirably. This style of swindling may be entitled the "fainting dodge." A gentleman and hady enter a first-class restaurant, demand a private apartment, and call for the best the house can serve. and call for the best the house can serve. Spring lamb, green peas, new patatoes, asparagus, and other costly rarities are ordered and swallowed, and washed down with rich burgundy bordeaux and champagne. When dinner is over the bell of the private room is heard to ring violently. The waiter hastens to answer the impatient summons. He finds Madame stretched at full length on the soft, while Monsieur holds a bottle of smelling salte under her proboscis.

"Quick a carriage!" cries the gentleman. "My wife has fainted."

The Natives of the Isthmus of Panama. In one of the Rev. Start King's recent letters from California, he speaks as follows of the native people whom he saw on the isthmus of Panama:

"A negro has been called the image of God cut in ebony. On the Isthmus we saw the divine image shining, in glowing golden bronze. I tried to learn if these specimens were not a cross between the African and the native Indian, but could not get information. Certainly, by their tawny brilliance they put the Caucasian hus to shame. That is the color Providence intended for the tropica, It harmonizes with the accentry. A white skin may do under the Ein, but the bronze hues are needed under the canopy of the palm. A perfect civilization on the globe will organize the laws of beauty as well as of justice, and then the dark and down-trodden children of the sun will be acknowledged and protected, as part of the exthetic furniture of the world's burning zone."

DEATH OF AN ENGLISH CONSUL.-Inform DEATH OF AN ENGINER CONSUL,—Information has been received in Egypt of the death of Mr. Plowden, English Consul in Abyesinia. He is stated to have died of wounds received in an attack made upon him by one of the chiefs under Negonssi, the rebel Governor of Tigre, while he was traveling through the province on his way from Gondar to Massowa. He was ransomed by Ring Theodore for $1,000, but was already in a dying state. The assistance rendered to the Governor of Tigre by the French, in return for the grant of territory which he has made to them on the sea coast, is said to be largely contributing toward enabling him to resist the authority of Theodore.

A CUNNINGHAS CANARD,—"Pink," the New York correspondent of the Charleston Courier, in his letter of June 1, says. "There is a rumor to the effect that Mrs. Cunningham who has gone to California, has made a strange confession. The news was received by the last steamer. Mrs. Cunningham was represented as being on her death-hed, and of course admitted that she knew something of the murder of Dr. Burdell. The story sounds very much like a canard, but there are really some women in town who believe it."
